Miss Mina Brown, well known to Barre people, will give a lecture in the Universalist church, Monday evening, March 18, on "Switzerland." She will give some of her observations and experiences abroad, with views of scenes which have been specially collected.

Now, all this week the opportunity is yours to save dollars on anything in the clothing, shoe, and furnishing line. The water damage sale at A. A. Smith & Brother's is now in full swing. The prices range from one quarter to one-half former prices. A partial list of the goods included in the sale is listed in their adv. appearing on another page.

In the current issue of the Monumental News the following item appears: "Waldron Shields, who has been traveling in the Central West for the past few years for the Rutland-Florence Marble Co., is soon to enter the wholesale granite business at Barre, Vt." Also this item: "The J. H. Brown Monument Co., of Barre, Vt., has opened a western headquarters at Davenport, Ia."

Miss Leah Bessett of 77 South Main street was greatly surprised last evening by a call from about twenty of her friends. The evening was spent in playing games and singing. During the evening Miss Eva Denuo, in behalf of the company, presented Miss Bessett a beautiful gold ring. Miss Bessett responded, thanking them for the gift. Refreshments of cake, coffee and fruit were served.

Speaking of the granite industry suspension in Barre, the Hardwick Gazette has the following interesting contribution: "The impression has gone out that because Barre quarrymen are idle it will cripple business here. That is not a fact. While some manufacturers do use Barre granite for specified jobs, the largest output is for their own quarries and business will not be handicapped. Hardwick and Woodbury granite are being used more extensively than ever before for monumental work, and the only reason is that the stone is all right."

W. A. Whitecar, who made such a pointed success in "The Mummy and the Humming Bird," last season, will give more than one thrill to his many friends at the opera house on Friday, March 13, when he brings his new idyl of the plains, "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," to their notice. His part is as unusual as it is strong. He is a disguised New Yorker who comes to a Texas ranch to lose himself. He loses his sweetheart instead and finds her in the strangest manner imaginable. He is true to a woman who has no claim upon him, offers his life to free another and behaves generally as only a real hero should who is thrown into so many situations of peril and temptation.
